

Notable Sorceresses of the Lodge

Yennifer of Vengerberg

The witchhunter met the green-haired sorcerer a good twenty years back. Their friendship and the feelings between them were born of a common adventure involving a quest and a night granted to Geralt that mortarized their lives inevitably in the time since then their relationship had, however, been quite stormy—rich in ups and downs, crises and reconciliations. Geralt and Yennifer's love provides irrefutable proof of the thesis that "opposites attract."

A few years ago Geralt and Yennifer had, after a long separation full of adventures for their both, gotten back together again. Their moment of repose was interrupted by the Wild Hunt, which took Yennifer captive. The witcher set out in order to save her but lost his memory while doing so. When he finally recovered it, he immediately set off once more on his quest to find his beloved sorcerer.

Yennifer made her home close to the nearby Tuhle-Kaup, below the towering granite mountains of Kaer Tuhle-Kaup.

Letter to Yennifer

Yennifer, my dear friend,
Thank you for your letter. I regret me for not answering your earlier attempt to reach me via messenger. I am trying to find my magic communication to the absolute minimum. One never knows who's listening, don't you agree?

I am delighted you have heard a position at our precious emperor's court and wish you the best of luck in the search for his daughter. It is good to know that Enhyr's intentions for her have become more, how shall I put it, mundane. Perhaps in these circumstances an agreement regarding the Lodge will prove possible after all?

In response to your first question, I can state beyond all doubt that Cor has not appeared anywhere south of the Haruga. Believe me, I could recognize her magic signature in my sleep.

I have not had any contact with Tissa for a long time. I only hear that things in Thorspod have gotten on all right. She promised something earlier about fleeing to Kaer, but I am afraid that in the current political climate that amounts to an impossible dream.

I hope I will soon be able to join you in Ultimea. First, however, I must take care of some unfortunate yet urgent matters in Bruma.

With my kindest regards,

Franya Viper

P.S. Thank you for the news about Geralt. He always seems to land on his feet, doesn't he?

How the storm on the mountains of Kaer Tuhle.
